CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY JUNE 2, 1933

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—Many circulators of petitions for state referendums, especially those on the Mosier act and the two bills referring to the state motor vehicle registration department, are sending signed petitions to the office of the Secretary of State at Columbus when they should be sent to the headquarters of the committees that have charge of the campaigns. The circulation of all referendum petitions is not an official enterprise, but is carried on by private individuals and organizations having headquarters as designated on the petitions. It is to these headquarters that petitions should be sent after being signed. The committee sponsoring the referendum on the motor vehicle bureau transfer and the highway police proposal, with headquarters at 40 South Third street, has advised all circulators to complete and file their petitions not later than June 10 for a preliminary check up. Many petitions have been received daily in recent weeks.

Few if any individuals have been in the service of the State of Ohio longer than E. E. Borton, engineer and agent of canal lands in the Department of Public Works. Mr. Borton was appointed in the Public Works Department from Gallia county in June, 1892, forty-one years ago. The appointment was made by R. M. Round, president of the State Canal Commission, at the request of Governor William McKinley. Mr. Borton has continued in office ever since under Democratic and Republican governors alike, and has witnessed many changes in the names and titles of his immediate superiors. In 1906, under the brief administration of Governor John M. Pattison, the activities of the department were transferred to the Department of Public Works. In 1913 another change in the setup of the department took place, when John I. Miller became superintendent of public works. The head of the department now is T. S. Brindle, director of public works. Mr. Borton is undoubtedly the best informed man on state canal lands and public parks in Ohio. The next oldest employee in the Department of Public Works is H. E. Whitlock, an engineer, who was appointed in August, 1915, from Miami county. He is a cousin of Brand Whitlock, famous author. The third oldest attaché of the department is Donald C. Booth, secretary of public works, who entered the department in 1923, being appointed from Franklin county.

J. H. Clarke of Springfield and Columbus, who has succeeded John Henry Newman as state librarian, spent all of his life as an educator until coming to the state library five years ago. His school positions have been in Clark and Miami counties and at Fremont, Ohio. Prior to going to Fremont he was a supervisor in the state department of education for eight years. He holds life certificates to teach in the state schools and an A. M. degree from Wittenberg college. All his life he has been in direct library activities in connection with his schools and local libraries in the selection, purchasing and circulation of the stores of books, magazines, newspapers, etc. Mr. Clarke has the view point of the library patrons. The state library has rare and valuable books on its shelves. Mr. Clarke states that any patron in the state may obtain any book by writing for it.

With the opening of the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago, June 1, the Ohio exhibit will be a center of interest for all Ohioans. The next day of special interest of the people of this state at the exposition will be July 15, which will be "Ohio Day." This date was selected because of its historical significance. Special trains and excursion fares will offer inducements to visit the Exposition at that time. The Ohio space, as well as that of other states, is located in the "Court of States" building, which is situated on "Northwestern Island." The space occupies 5,000 square feet, and depicts by means of beautiful mural paintings and other ornaments and displays a "Century of Progress" in Ohio. A wood mosaic of the state seal of Ohio, located in the middle of the foyer; a gigantic mechanical map of Ohio, and a large tablet which tells in brief form of the development of the state in many lines, are outstanding features. Director Charles F. Henry of the Ohio Exhibit states that fully 75 per cent of the murals, furniture, floor covering and other decorations and equipment will be returned to Ohio and put on display again, so that the state will get back all of the money it is expending for the exhibit. A unique cartograph map showing outstanding historical, geographical and industrial facts of the state has been published for distribution.

COURT NEWS

ADMITS THEFT

Sherman Scully, 45, colored, pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was held to the grand jury under $500 bond Monday by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith, Xenia. Police said Scully admitted locking himself in a lavatory and inventing a hold-up story to account for the theft of $53 which he admittedly took from an unlocked safe in the F. E. Anderson insurance agency where he was a janitor. A portion of the loot was recovered.

CLAIM IS SETTLED

A suit filed by Attorney George H. Smith to recover a judgment for $225, representing legal services, against his former client, Frank E. Snyppe, Osborn, who will be tried July 18 on charges of violating the Ohio securities act, has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court, according to a court entry which disclosed the attorney's claim had been settled to his satisfaction.

HEARING JUNE 16

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy has fixed June 16 as the time for allowance of the bill of exceptions providing attorneys for McClain Catterlin, Brazil, Ind., carry out their announced intention of filing a petition in error in the Court of Appeals, seeking review of the "ancient estates" promoter's conviction on a charge of violating the Ohio securities act. A further extension will be authorized in the event the court stenographer is unable to complete voluminous transcript by June 16.

JUDGMENT GRANTED

A Common Pleas Court jury, deliberating thirty minutes before reaching a unanimous verdict Saturday, awarded Mrs. Mary J. Bales a judgment for $240.35, almost the full amount sought in her suit against Laura E. Wilkins, sole heir and administratrix of the estate of Edward J. Wilkins, late of Xenia. The trial lasted a day and a half. Mrs. Bales sued for $247.50, claimed to be due her for nursing, boarding and other services rendered for the decedent, at his request. The administratrix had rejected the claim.

ALIMONY AWARDED

Alimony and certain other properties have been awarded to Mrs. Sue H. Brownell, Beaver Creek Twp., by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy as alimony in her suit against John R. Brownell, former Dayton manufacturer.

She sued for alimony for support of herself and the couple's youngest daughter, Betty Ann, 15. At the time of the suit they lived in the residence on the 224-acre Brownell farm on the Indian River road.

Judge Gowdy ruled that she is entitled to all the furniture in the residence, which is now owned by William Brod, Montgomery county, and all the personal property including other household goods owned jointly by the couple. Additional property now in storage in the warehouse of Harry Ford, 23 Linden ave., Dayton, was awarded Mrs. Brownell and property now on the farm in Brod's name was awarded the defendant.

BOY GETS FREEDOM

Donivan Henry, 20-year-old Jamestown youth, won freedom from the Greene County Jail on Friday when the Court of Appeals, following a special hearing in the forenoon here, granted a writ of habeas corpus sought by the boy's mother, Mrs. Eloise Henry.

The habeas corpus action was filed directly in the appellate court after the youth had been re-arrested and re-committed to jail Sunday by Mayor W. E. Reid, Jamestown, for asserted violation of conditions under which he had suspended a sixty-day jail sentence imposed November 10, 1932 on a theft charge.

The father of the youth, a Jamestown veterinarian, has caused his son's arrest on a charge that he took eggs from him without his consent, sold them and kept the money, it is alleged. The boy pleaded guilty and Mayor Reid suspended the sentence he had imposed and placed him on probation for one year.

Crowd Thrilled In Motor Car Races

One hundred thousand people eager for thrills and excitement gathered at the paved motor track in Indianapolis for the annual Indianapolis 500-mile race. The big crowd was not disappointed. Two drivers and a riding mechanic rode to their deaths in accidents when cars skidded. This was the twenty-first racing event on the two and one-half mile track.

Cedarville Held Bluffton Down

The Cedarville College baseball team failed to win a close game with Bluffton College, Tuesday, on the latter's diamond, but by excellent pitching and fielding held the score 5 to 4 in a 14 inning game.

In the game here Saturday against Bluffton Cedarville won 10 to 4. Garlough, Cedarville pitcher, struck out seventeen batters. Bluffton secured all four runs in one inning due to an error, otherwise Garlough would have had a shutout victory.

Boards and Patrons Oppose Centralized New School Code

The new school code being fostered by the White administration will completely upset all existing school laws if it should pass the present legislature.

Representative W. R. McChesney received the first copy of the school code last Saturday and that school board members might have some knowledge of its contents a number of board members, members of the county board and superintendents in the county gathered in the mayor's office Saturday night to hear it read. It took one hour and a half to read the proposed law.

Those present, soon were convinced that the adoption of the code would not please either the board members, superintendents or school patrons. It is proposed as an economy measure but the power placed in the hands of the state director of education, who can authorize county boards and county superintendents to do his will, left the impression that no economy was possible. In fact school patrons would be placed farther from the control of the schools than they are at present. Board members would only be "dummies" to carry out orders of the county board or that of the state director. The local boards could elect only such teachers as would be recommended by the county superintendent.

Scores of new appointees would be necessary under the law and their salaries would be fixed by the county board to be paid out of the county treasury. All school tax funds raised in the county would go into a common fund to be distributed according to the average daily attendance of the schools.

Monday evening another meeting was held in the Assembly Room in the Court House, Xenia, when board members and citizens heard further discussion. Albert Ankeney, Beaver Creek Twp., presided. Sentiment was unanimous against the proposed law and a resolution was passed imploring Representative McChesney to oppose it. Copies were also placed in the hands of the clerks of the House and Senate.

XENIA MERCHANTS OPPOSE ANY SALES TAX PLAN

Xenia merchants went on record at a meeting Monday opposing the sales tax bill suggested by Gov. White and urged that Representative W. R. McChesney vote against it when it comes up for passage. The Ohio Council of Retail Merchants is waging a fight against any kind of a sales tax in the interests of merchants, who will be forced to collect same from their customers.

Under the bill introduced a heavy penalty is provided for the firm, corporation or individual, that advertises or sells or barter, that does not collect the tax direct at the time the sale or trade is made. This must be remitted the first of each month before the merchant can pay any of his usual bills.

Senate Confirms Dr. Arthur Morgan

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College appointed by President Roosevelt, director of the Muscle Shoals-Tennessee Valley improvement, was confirmed by the Senate on Tuesday. Dr. Morgan will continue as president of Antioch College. He had charge of the flood prevention work in the Miami Valley following the disastrous flood in Dayton in 1913. It is said it will require fifteen years to complete the work the government is undertaking in the Tennessee Valley. The cost will be returned to the government by the sale of water power from storage dams that will be used to hold the water back in flood stage.

AUDITOR WILL MAKE MAY TAX SETTLEMENT

May settlement on tangible and intangible personal property taxes for the first half of 1933 will be made on the basis of a tax collection amounting to $36,958.74, according to an announcement Saturday by J. J. Curlett, Greene County auditor.

Distribution of tangible property tax money will total $17,888.03 and the intangible property amount distributed will be $19,070.71.

As compared with the corresponding settlement in 1932, which amounted to $36,601.85, the prospective distribution represents a slight increase. Actually, however, the total collection represented a decrease from last year because many owners of intangible property paid their taxes in full for the entire year instead of the usual 50 per cent installment, officials explained. The decrease will be reflected in the settlement for the last half of 1933.

The tangible property collection amounting to $17,888.03, was less than for the first half of 1932 when $18,178.61 was collected. The intangible tax payments increased from $18,423.24 in 1932 to $19,070.71 for the first half this year.

Share of Xenia city schools in the tangible and intangible distribution will be $9,461.12 while Xenia city will receive a total of $3,947.84 from the two sources.

Distribution of tangible tax money will be made as follows: state's share, $4,611; county's share, $3,679.41; township's share, $1,122.25; schools' share, $10,323.88; share of city and villages, $2,207.78.

Intangible tax money will be apportioned, as follows: state tax commission, $198.21; schools, $13,061.98; city and villages, $4,082.03. Greene County District Library and libraries of Cedarville and Sugar Creek, $2,280.49.

Small Crowd Out Decoration Day

Favored with bright pleasant weather Decoration Day was observed Tuesday in the usual manner. The local band headed the procession which was formed in the center of town where the parade proceeded to North Cemetery. Dr. W. R. McChesney delivered the patriotic address. Graves were decorated under the direction of the Wallace C. Anderson Post of the American Legion, which had charge of the program for the day.

Veteran's graves in the other cemeteries were decorated. The D. A. R. had charge of the exercises at the old Massies Creek cemetery following the event in North cemetery. The attendance during the day was much smaller than usual, this being due to the fact that farmers were all busy getting their corn planted.

Year by year we have noticed the declining attendance of Decoration Day exercises by Civil War veterans. We understand there are but fourteen survivors in the county, and only one in this community, Mr. S. T. Baker.

Only five veterans of the Civil War were able to be in the parade in Xenia, D. R. Brewer, W. I. Smith, C. W. Wilson, William Logan, Xenia, and T. T. Cummins, Jamestown.

COLUMBUS.—Next year's meeting of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America will be held at Cleveland. The site was chosen at the closing session of the 145th general assembly here Monday, the Ohio metropolis winning over Atlantic City and Columbus.

County Job Army Goes To Dayton

Sixty-two young men left this county for Dayton on Wednesday for examination before going to Camp Knox in Kentucky. All were from 18 to 25 years of age and will join the federal "forestry army." Former Sheriff Omar Tate accompanied the delegation to Dayton on a special traction car.

Of the sixty-two who departed, thirty-eight were from Xenia and the remainder from the county. Each enlisted for six months and will be paid $30 a month with the stipulation that $25 of this sum must be sent back to dependents. The government is using these young men in forestry work.

FREQUENT CUTTING
INJURES THE LAWN

Here's a message from George M. McClure to that person in each family whose duty it is to mow the lawn. Mr. McClure, who is a member of the department of soils and crops of the Ohio State University and an authority on lawn care, says most lawns are cut too often and too short for their own good.

"The height and frequency the turf is cut," he says, "has a decided effect upon the quality of the lawn. No lawn should be mowed on a regular schedule. Measure the height of the grass when it looks healthy and well kept, then set the mower to cut about one-half inch below that height, and cut only when it has grown more than one-half inch above."

"If this is done the grass is never cut too closely and no clippings will need to be removed. During periods of hot dry weather the grass should be allowed to grow taller than usual. In general, the lawn should be cut as high as it is possible to do so with the average lawn mower—one and one-half inches.

"Watering should be done only when the grass shows signs of needing moisture. Then enough should be applied to wet the ground at least four inches deep. Light daily sprinklings cause major portion of the grass roots to develop near the surface of the soil where in hot weather they are dried by the sun and wind. only an unusually dry soil should be watered oftener than once a week."

Sales Tax Bill
Gets Another Setback

The sales tax bill introduced in the House after being rewritten the fifth time, suffered a fate like its predecessors, Wednesday when the Taxation Committee refused to recommend it to the House membership for passage. The vote was 16 to 9 against the bill. This was a direct setback for Gov. White and Farm Bureau leaders that have been trying for weeks to force such a bill through the House. The vote against it was seven Democrats and eight Republicans.

The House school committee took a decided stand against the proposed school code and turned it down by a vote of eleven to two. The bill had been drawn at the request of Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director. It was the most revolutionary measure ever offered in the history of Ohio in regard to control of schools. Neither Germany, Russia or Italy have anything as drastic under the despotic leadership in control of those countries. The committee will write its own bill. In as much as the sales tax bill was to partially finance the school program, its death would have defeated the purpose of the school bill code.

As was expected no bill was introduced to reduce taxes on real estate, though many promises have been made on that line.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 22, 1933

I suppose that I may claim to be the first Ford Dealer. I not only made cars, but sold them and frequently delivered them myself.

The "drive away" is not new; often I have driven cars from Detroit to towns in Ohio or Indiana or Michigan to make delivery.

There were no good roads in those days, and the people where I drove had never seen a motor car before.

My first really enthusiastic customers were Country Doctors. They were the first to realize the value of dependable transportation to a widely scattered practice.

Even today I occasionally hear from some of those first Ford users.

We had to teach local mechanics how to care for the cars. That is how Ford Service began, which is now found everywhere in the world.

We believed from the beginning that a sale does not complete our transaction with our customer — it creates upon us an obligation to see that our customer's car gives him service. Ford Dealers know their duty to the public in this respect.

I can say of Ford Dealers generally that they have been and are men of character and standing in their communities. Most of them have been with us many years, which indicates that we agree on basic business principles. The Company provides that the methods used to sell the Ford car are consistent with the self-respect of the Dealers who handle it.

The present Ford V-8 is the peak of our 30 years experience. We have never made a better car. Its eight-cylinder engine is powerful and smooth running. The car is admittedly very good looking and has comfortable riding qualities. It is economical in operation because of advanced engine design and low car weight. It is the fastest, roomiest and most powerful car we have ever built.

Island of Sark
Is Feudal State

Once Haunt of Pirates, Now a Peaceful Place With Ancient Customs.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.)
WHEN the Dame of Sark recently went shopping in London, the event was news in at least two continents; for La Dame de Sark is the first lady of the only purely feudal state remaining in the world, the island of Sark in the English channel.

Sark is the fourth largest of the Channel Islands. It lies 70 miles south of England and 22 miles from the coast of France. It is three and a half miles long and one and a half miles wide; and yet, because of its numerous bays and coves, it has 35 miles of coast. It is the highest land in the Channel Islands.

The cliffs, rising on all sides almost perpendicularly, are covered with innumerable varieties of rock plants and flowers, while below are sandy bays and wonderful caves, whose sea-been walls are covered with seaweeds and sea anemones of every color of the rainbow. On the beaches may be found semipalmated stones, such as amethysts, cat's-eyes, and moonstones. The island is rich without minerals; at one time mines were worked which produced copper, silver, antimony, and galena.

The interior of the island is undulating, with valleys full of wild flowers, and in the spring the whole is covered with a blaze of golden gorse, blue bells, and primroses. No venomous beasts live in Sark, not even a toad!

On landing at the Sark harbor, which is one of the smallest in the world, the visitor finds himself entirely surrounded by steep cliffs, and the only means of access to the island from there is by a road passing through a tunnel 200 feet long, placed in the cliff, and thence by a steep, winding road which leads to the center of the island, where there are a few small shops and four hotels.

The highway continues to La Coupée, where the island is divided into two parts, Great Sark and Little Sark, joined by a huge natural causeway of rock nearly 300 feet high and 415 feet long, across which runs a road just wide enough for one cart and horse.

Appeal to the Dame.

Great privileges are always accompanied by grave responsibilities; so that the Dame's home may be described as the center of the island controversy. It is open at any time to any inhabitant of the island who wishes to see her for any reason, and she sometimes longs for the leisure of the "tired business man" when often both sides of a difficulty are brought to her final judgment. Discussions take place on subjects which range from whether bathers shall wear beach pajamas or whether the Chief Pleas shall pass a measure to deal with the prevention of infectious diseases among cattle.

The Sark parliament is called the Chief Pleas, and it sits three times a year unless called by the Dame in an emergency. The forty holders of the farns allotted originally in 1565, plus twelve deputies elected among the rest of the inhabitants, who now number 675, are members of the parliament.

To "Sarkites" the king of England is their feudal lord, the duke of Normandy, and he has no more loyal and devoted subjects than they, who have from time immemorial been part of the Duchy of Normandy, whose duke, William the Conqueror, invaded and took England and was thereafter recognized as king of England, but to them has always remained duke of Normandy.

In point of fact, the Channel Islands were never a part of England, but part and parcel of the Duchy of Normandy, and as such, no doubt, took part in the conquest of England. Sark is the smallest self-governing part of the British empire and the only part which has no public debt. In fact, it has a substantial credit balance.

The language of the island officially is French, though everyone speaks English, which is taught equally with French in the schools, so that everyone is bilingual. Among themselves the islanders always speak their own "patois" which is a survival of the old Norman French as spoken at the time of the Conquest. It is never written and cannot be understood by anyone not brought up in its midst.

Sark has a boys' and a girls' school, in regard to which it is interesting to note that Sark was the first part of the British empire to adopt compulsory education. The Dame inspects both schools at examination time and asks the children questions in French and English and satisfies herself as to their general mental progress.

Motor Cars Banned.

A law against the importation of motor cars has been passed and this is strictly enforced. The Dame believes there should be one spot left on earth where modern transportation can be forgotten and where peace and quiet are undisturbed. She also refuses to allow the importation of any female dog, the ownership of such, except by the Seigneur, being forbidden under an old custom upheld by law for centuries. It is also the old right of the Seigneur alone to keep pigeons—an excellent law, as in this way their number is controlled and damage to crops is minimized. The large stone pigeon cote is an essential part of any feudal seigneurie.

It is also a seigneurial privilege that none but he may grind corn or build a mill, and although the old windmill is now no longer used, he still grinds all corn brought to the seigneurie by the more modern methods of motor and machine, charging each farmer a small fee for grinding.

All cereals grown in Sark are subject to seigneurial tithes, and no man may harvest his crops until these tithes, called "dimes," have been collected. The farmer who now sows, sows 48 hours before he intends cutting, so that some one may be sent to the fields to see that every tenth sheaf is set aside for the seigneur, who also has a tithe of cider, lamb, wool, and a royalty on all minerals.

Each of the forty pays a yearly tithe, the amount set on his property, and the old chimney tax, of poultry, as it is called, is still in force, paid in live chickens every year to the seigneur.

the great 'real' of England. This royal grant gave to Sir Heler and his successors almost unlimited powers on condition that he colonize the island with forty families—each of whom he allotted a portion of the land to farm. Each man was equipped with a musket for the defense of the island; so that to this day it is often spoken of as "the island of the forty," and even now, when a farm changes hands, it is still cited as one of the conditions of the deed of conveyance that a man with a musket shall be kept on the farm.

Though the De Carteret family still owns the Manor of Saint-Onen, in Jersey, Sark passed out of its hands when, in 1732, it was sold, with all its rights and privileges, and eventually came to the great-grandmother of the present Dame of Sark, in 1822. For many years an artillery militia was maintained, consisting of about one hundred men; now all that remains are a few old cannon, lying disused and half hidden in bracken and gorse on the cliffs, while in the grounds of the Dame's house is a fine old bronze cannon, which was presented to the first Seigneur of Sark in 1572 by Queen Elizabeth, and bears an inscription to that effect.

The Dame's house, or "Seigneurie," lies in a sheltered part of the island and is built of grey granite. The original or main part of the house, dating from 1565, stands on the site of the old monastery, and no doubt many of the stones used to build it were taken from the ruins. The fireplace in the hall bears the date 1575 and the sundial on the outside 1585. The gardens are opened to the general public, free of any charge, every Monday.

Great privileges are always accompanied by grave responsibilities; so that the Dame's home may be described as the center of the island controversy. It is open at any time to any inhabitant of the island who wishes to see her for any reason, and she sometimes longs for the leisure of the "tired business man" when often both sides of a difficulty are brought to her final judgment.
